Contents

Remerciements ix

Introduction: Ecological Readings 3
   The “Ferry” effect 3
   Reading ecologically 5
   Corpus and concepts 8
   Setting the stage: French ecological thinking 12
   Thinking through/with cultural differences 16
   Cultures and climates of literary studies 19
   The “French” effect 23

1 Ecological Subjectivity: Guattari and Darrieussecq 26
   Theory 30
      Portrait: Félix Guattari 30
      Ecosophy’s political possibilities 33
      Subjectivity’s aesthetic possibilities 37
   Fiction 40
      Portrait: Marie Darrieussecq 40
      Writing the processes of (de)subjectification 43
      Writing the body in/out of place 51
   Conclusion: Aesthetic perspectives and new subjectivities 58

2 Ecological Dwelling: Serres and Lafon 60
   Theory 65
      Portrait: Michel Serres 65
The figure of the paysan: Writing on/of the land 67
The natural contract: Ecological dwelling in/with the world 70
The end of the paysan: Future(s) for ecological dwelling 72

Fiction 75
- Portrait: Marie-Hélène Lafon 75
- Dying and evolving practices of place 77
- Composing landscapes and bodies 81
- Ecological dwelling in urban environments 86
- Conclusion: Inhabiting language as ecological dwelling 91

3 Ecological Politics: Latour and Rufin 93

Theory 97
- Portrait: Bruno Latour 97
- Making nature(s) matter 99
- Composing collectives in/and a common world 102
- Democracy and diplomacy, or redistributing humanism 104

Fiction 108
- Portrait: Jean-Christophe Rufin 108
- The trouble with “nature” 111
- (Im)possible global collectives 116
- Renewing a (French) universal humanism 119
- Conclusion: Capitalism’s ill affects/effects 124

4 Ecological Ends: Schaeffer and Houellebecq 126

Theory 130
- Portrait: Jean-Marie Schaeffer 130
- From literature to fiction 132
- Animality and the living world 135
- Literary studies as ecological niche 137

Fiction 140
- Portrait: Michel Houellebecq 140
- The end(s) of nature: Material landscapes and embodiment 141
- The end(s) of the human: Animality and the posthuman 146
- The end(s) of literature: Life stories and story worlds 152
- Conclusion: Post-humanist (re)turns 157
Conclusion: Further Ecological Readings 158
   Ecological humanism 159
   Literature’s (post)humanist roles 162
   Situating French écocritique 166

Notes 171
Bibliography 219
Index 235