Contents

List of Illustrations and Tables  xi
Acknowledgments  xiii
Abbreviations  xv

Introduction  3

Part One: Power and Politics in Boccaccio’s Times

1 An Apprenticeship in Politics (1341–1343)  13
   From Naples to Florence: Santa Felicita in Oltrarno  13
   The Bardi Conspiracy of 1340  20
   “Endeavour to Make One or More Friends”  23
   The Call and the Fall of the Duke of Athens  33

2 Boccaccio and Politics (1348–1355)  47
   The Plague and Its Aftermath  47
   Boccaccio’s Political Years  51
   “Petrarch’s War” and the War against the Visconti  64
   Boccaccio’s Last Offices and Disappearance  74

3 The 1360 Conspiracy (1359–1361)  83
   The Guelf Party and Terror of the Ammonizioni  84
   The Ringleaders  92
   The Dynamics of the Conspiracy  97
   The Informants  99
   The Death Sentence  101
   The Other Conspirators  105
4 Consequences of the Conspiracy (1361–1365) 112
   The Defamatory Portraits 113
   The Executed: Niccolò di Bartolo del Buono and Domenico Bandini 116
   The Exiles: The Case of Luca di Feo Ugolini 125
   Boccaccio’s Withdrawal to Certaldo 130

Part Two: At the Intersections of Literature and Politics

5 Antityrannical Motives in De mulieribus claris 149
   Friendship in Time of Conspiracy 150
   Florence: The Prostitutes Venus and Flora and the Seduced Hercules 155
   Antityrannical Motives 161
   The Stoic Suicide: Escape towards Freedom 166

6 The Consolatoria a Pino de’ Rossi: A Manifesto on Innocence 175
   Who Was Pino de’ Rossi? 175
   Boccaccio’s Letter: A Manifesto on Innocence 181
   Against Judges: Milex Ludovicus Juvenalis Cardolis de Narnia 186
   The Corruption of the Florentines 191
   Pino de’ Rossi and Friends 197
   The Consolations of Giovanni Boccaccio 200
   The Questionable Innocence of Pino de’ Rossi 203
   Appendix: Summary of Boccaccio’s Consolatoria a Pino de’ Rossi 204

7 The Lives of Dante 207
   The Life of Dante: First Version 208
   Self-Censorship in the Second Version 212
   The Deletion of Monarchia 217
   A Change of Audience 219
   Lapo da Castiglionchio 222
   Tensions with Petrarch: On the Solitary Life 226
   Boccaccio’s Enduring Fidelity to Dante 232

8 Conspirators in the Decameron 235
   What’s in a Name? Donati and Monna Nonna 235
   Decameron VI: The Florentine Day 241
   Fortune and Nature: A Philosophical Debate 247
   Noble Blood versus Noble Soul: A Political Debate 252
   Founding the Utopian City 258

Afterword 265
Appendix 1: Genealogical Tables 267
1. Giovanni di Boccaccio da Certaldo 267
2. Bice di Nepo de’ Bostichi 268
3. Messer Pino di Giovanni de’ Rossi 268
4. Monna Oretta Malespini (Dec. VI.1) and Messer Geri di Manetto Spini (Dec. VI.2) 269
5. Monna Nonna de’ Pulci (Dec. VI.3) 270
6. Currado Gianfigliazzi (Dec. VI.4) 270
7. Betto di Brunello Brunelleschi (Dec. VI.9) 271

Appendix 2: Transcriptions of Documents 272
1. The Death Sentence: ASFi, Atti del Podesta’ 1525, ff. 57r–58r 272
2. Document stating that Luca di Feo Ugolini is in Volterra: ASFi, Diplomatico, Santo Spirito, 6 January 1360 278
3. The inheritance to be received by Niccolò di Luca di Feo Ugolini from his mother’s estate: ASFi, Diplomatico, Santo Spirito, 4 January 1360 280

Appendix 3: The Conspirators: Prosopographical Notes 281
1. Niccolò di Bartolo del Buono 281
2. Domenico di Donato Bandini 282
3. Messer Pino di Giovanni de’ Rossi 283
4. Uberto di Ubaldino degli Infangati 285
5. Beltramo di Bartolomeo de’ Pazzi 288
6. Andrea di Tello da Lisca 288
7. Niccolò di Guido de’ Frescobaldi 289
8. Andrea di Pacchio degli Adimari 289
9. Pazzino di Messer Apardo Donati 290
10. Luca di Feo Ugolini 292
11. Pelliccia de’ Gherardini 293
12. Frate Cristofano di Nuccio 294

Bibliography 295

Index of Names 321
This page intentionally left blank