This book is based on research dating back to my very first fieldwork as a green graduate student interested in, but rather ignorant of, Tamil cinema. Along the way, now over fifteen years later, I have accumulated many intellectual debts and made and strengthened many relationships, collegial, friendly, and familial, all of which have made possible and shaped this book. Considerably grayer, I happily remain green (though not as vividly as before, I hope; colourlessly perhaps), honoured by all those thanked below who have helped me along the way by showing me, and encouraging me to push beyond, the limits of my knowledge and understanding.

Primary among those are mentors, colleagues, and students who read, listened to, and commented on parts of the manuscript at various stages: Asif Agha, E. Annamalai, Indira Arumugam, Richard Bauman, Christopher Ball, the late Bernard Bate, Susan Blum, Quentin Boitel, Charles Briggs, Claudia Brittenham, Brigitta Busch, Cécile Canut, Jim Chandler, the late Venkatesh Chakravarthy, Lily Chumley, Francis Cody, Li Cornfeld, James Costa, Whitney Cox, Colleen Kim Daniher, Sonia Das, Melanie Dean, Sara Dickey, Sascha Ebeling, Swarnavel Eswaran, Allyson Field, Daniel Fisher, Luke Fleming, Mi-Cha Flubacher, Anton Ford, Susan Gal, Tejaswini Ganti, Suzanne Gruca, Joseph Hankins, William Hanks, Kathryn Hardy, Nicholas Harkness, Jonas Hessemer, John Haviland, Manon Him-Aquilli, Erika Hoffmann-Dilloway, Stephen Hughes, Judith Irvine, Kajri Jain, Damodaran Karthikeyan, Gwendolyn Kirk, Rajan Krishnan, Amrutha Kunapulli, Michael Kunichika, Emily Kuret, Gabrielle Lear, Martin Lefebvre, Isabelle Leglise, Sabine Lehner, Alaina Lemon, Michael Lempert, Michael Lucey, Rochona Majumdar, Kaley Mason, Bertrand Masquelier, William Mazzarella, Tom McEnany, Anand Pandian, Jennifer Pranolo, V. Rajesh, Karthick Ram Manoharan, Vasu Renganathan, Justin Richland, Ricardo Rivera, Kamala Russell, Llerena Searle, Susan Seizer, Susan Philips, Shubham Shivang, David Shulman, Maria Sidorkina, the late Michael Silverstein, Salomé Aguilera Skvirsky, Jürgen Spitzmüller, Ravi Sriramachandran, S.V. Srinivas, Perundevi Srinivasan, Marth Umphrey, Anubhav Vasudevan, Anna Weichselbraun, Christopher Wild, Kristina Wirtz, Perry Wong, Kathryn Woolard, and Alice Yao. Discussion with the Michicagoan Faculty Seminar in May 2019 helped me articulate certain of the stakes and commitments of the project. N. Govindarajan provided some last-minute translation advice. Priya Nelson lent generous support during the initial stages of the project. Jack Sidnell offered an enthusiastically engaged scholarly push and boost of confidence that helped move the project forward at a critical juncture; and Jodi Lewchuk helped guide it from there. Meghanne Barker, Daniel Morgan, the late Nancy Munn, Jack Sidnell, and Amanda Weidman generously read drafts of the whole manuscript at various points. Each offered numerous helpful, challenging, and detailed comments that have left deep impressions on my thinking and in this text. All the chapters were graciously read, many times over and at various stages over the course of the writing process, and once as a whole draft, by my fellow writing-group members, E. Summerson Carr, Julie Chu, and Jennifer Cole. Their comments thoroughly improved the book at every level, from writing style to analysis to theoretical formulation. Several anonymous reviewers at various stages greatly helped to improve the book. Many, many thanks to all.

Friends in India and the United States helped the project along in various ways. K. Senthil Saravana Kumar was instrumental in supporting me as a research assistant, a conversational partner about all things Tamil, and as a friend and brother. Dr. Bharathy, Dr. Jayanthi Kannan, Anusha Hariharan, Aravind Kumar, Kedharnath Sairam, Shaktisree Gopalan, Santhosh, Tony James, and the many college students and friends in Madurai and Chennai who spent time watching and talking about Tamil films with me made this project pleasurable to carry out. Venkat Prabhu and his directorial team at the time (Sripathi Rangasamy, Pa. Ranjith, Suresh Mari, A.N. Pitchumani, Senthil Velayudham, Venkateshan R., Basha, Shanoob Karuvath) were incredibly welcoming, opening up their office, sets, and homes to me. Many thanks to Kalyan Kumar, Sakti Saravanan, “Stunt” Silva, Vaibhav Reddy, Shakti Rajan; A.M. Ratnam, Selvaraghavan; Simran Bagga; John Vijay, Madhavi Elango, Vadivukkarasi, Ashok Balakrishnan; C.S. Amudhan, S. Sashikanth, “Akila Ulaga Superstar” Shiva, Manobala, Rambala, Suriya Narayanan, Sudhish Kamath; Balaji Sakthivel, Sasi-kumar; the late K. Balachander, the late Balu Mahendra, the late C.V.
Rajendran, Chitralaya Gopu, Gangai Amaran, K.S. Ravikumar, Myskin, P.C. Sriram, Pushkar and Gayathri, Rajiv Menon, Sasi; the late “Film News” Anandan, B. Lenin, G. Dhananjayan, Kalyana Devan, K. Hariharan, Uma Vangal, and many, many others, who were incredibly generous with their time, speaking with me about their work and experiences in and of Tamil cinema.

Emily Kuret did a masterful job annotating and designing key transcripts and figures in the book and, more generally, prompted me to think more creatively about design. Ruhi Sah, Sean Maher, and Jackson Cyril, at various points in this project, provided invaluable research assistance. All four helped me see new things about the materials in this books that have illuminated my analyses. Janice Evans and Carolyn Zapf managed the production and copy-editing of the manuscript at its end stage beautifully. Chris Fitzwater perfectly pictured the book in its cover, transposing the painterly aesthetics of Tamil cinema into a painting that brilliantly captures the film image’s simultaneous flatness and depth; I am honoured that he did so.

Thanks to my family for their unwavering support and generous advice – Anastasios and Carmen Valenzuela Nakassis, Dimitri Nakassis and Sarah James, Magda Nakassis (who aided in editing the manuscript and helped me clarify my writing and thinking throughout) and Damon Jackman, and especially to my daughters – Carmen Cassandre and Anastasia Eléa, who eagerly watched (and demanded that we watch) many, many Rajinikanth and Vijay films with me in the United States, in India, and on the plane in between – and my dear wife, Julie Cousin, who listened to me prattle on endlessly about everything in the manuscript and nevertheless always had something helpful and insightful to say that improved my thinking. She supports me in innumerable and not-often-enough acknowledged ways, ways I myself often fail to understand and sufficiently appreciate. I am ever grateful. Thank you.

The research and writing of this book were supported by funding from the American Institute of Indian Studies, the Marion R. and Adolph J. Lichtstern Fund for Anthropological Research at the University of Chicago, the Franke Institute of the Humanities at the University of Chicago, and the Committee on Southern Asian Studies (COSAS) at the University of Chicago. COSAS generously made the open-access publication of this book possible. The Lichtstern Fund generously supported manuscript preparation costs.

Chapter 1 expands the article “The Hero’s Mass and the Ontological Politics of the Image,” published in the Journal of Cinema and Media Studies 60, no. 1 (2020):70–91. Versions of this chapter were presented at the workshop “Ideologies of Communication: Practices, Scales, and Modes,” held at the University of Vienna (3 July 2019); Amherst College, Center for Humanistic Inquiry (27 March 2019); the University of California – Berkeley Sawyer Seminar on Linguistic Anthropology and Literary and Cultural Studies (14 November 2018); Unité Mixte de Recherche du CNRS, de l’INALCO et de l’IRD (8 June 2018); the Chicago Tamil Forum, the University of Chicago (26 May 2018); Conference of the Society for Linguistic Anthropology (10 March 2018); Indiana University – Bloomington’s Dhar India Studies Program (9 March 2017); New York University’s Media, Culture, and Communication Department (8 December 2016); the University of Chicago’s Mass Culture Workshop (2 December 2016) and Linguistic Anthropology Lab (27 May 2016); and the University of California – Berkeley’s Linguistic Anthropology Working Group (4 December 2015).

Parts of Chapter 2 were published as "A Tamil-speaking Heroine" in Bio-Scope 6, no. 2 (2015):165–86, published by SAGE, and, with Amanda Weidman, as "Vision, Voice, and Cinematic Presence" in differences: A Journal of Feminist Cultural Studies 29, no. 3 (2018):107–36, republished by permission of the publisher, Duke University Press. Versions of, or materials from, this chapter were presented at the Conference of the Society for Linguistic Anthropology (8 April 2022); the IV Annual International Conference of Caesurae Collective Society (27 March 2021); the Department of Anthropology and the South Asia Studies Program Colloquium, the University of California – San Diego (13 April 2015); the Franke Institute of the Humanities, the University of Chicago (6 April 2015); the Chicago Tamil Forum, the University of Chicago (6 April 2015); the Department of Anthropology and Liu Institute for Asia and Asian Studies, University of Notre Dame (20 March 2014); Berkeley Tamil Studies Conference, the University of California – Berkeley (21 April 2012); Tamil Studies Working Group, the University of Chicago (2 March 2012); and “Audible Intimacies: A Symposium on Song in South Indian Cinema,” the University of Chicago (16 February 2012).

A section of Chapter 4 was published as “Realism, On and Off the Screen” in Anand Pandian, ed., Subramaniyapuram: The Tamil Film in Acknowledgments

_English Translation_ (Chennai: Blaft Publications, 2014), pp. 217–23, used with permission. Materials from and drafts of this chapter were presented at the panel “Images of Otherness, Othering Images” at the annual American Anthropological Association meeting (22 November 2019); “Sense and Semiosis: Creating Conversations across Linguistic and Visual Anthropology,” the University of Chicago (27 September 2019); the workshop “Ideologies of Communication: Practices, Scales, and Modes,” University of Vienna (2 July 2019); Atelier de Recherche en Anthropologie du Langage, the University of Paris Descartes, Centre de Recherche sur les Liens Sociaux (26 June 2019); and Amherst College, Center for Humanistic Inquiry (27 March 2019).
This page intentionally left blank