Acknowledgments

Studies leading to this volume were supported by Canadian Mental Health Research Grant #065-5-276. Dr. J. R. B. Ball has contributed the personal follow-up data and was involved in the project from June 1960 to June 1961.

We are also grateful for the support of the Mental Health Branch, Department of Health, Government of Ontario, under Dr. B. H. McNeel, and the support and encouragement of Dr. A. B. Stokes, Head of the Department of Psychiatry, University of Toronto, and Dr. J. G. Dewan, Director of The Toronto Psychiatric Hospital.

The studies could not have been undertaken without the work of our colleagues at the Forensic Clinic. Dr. H. C. Hutchison, chief psychologist, and Mr. V. Hartman, chief social worker, served as consultants with regard to various facets of the study. The work of Dr. D. Paitich, senior psychologist, has helped us greatly in the difficulties of initial conceptualization and Drs. E. Markson and P. G. Thomson, consultant psychiatrists, have guided us in delineating our structurally oriented phenomenological approach from psychodynamic considerations. Dr. R. E. Stokes has read the whole manuscript and made numerous suggestions for improvements. The major contributing factor, however, was the spirit of inquiry and exchange and the high quality of work carried on at the clinic. All of this is a tribute to our mentor in forensic psychiatry, Dr. K. G. Gray.

Permission to quote figures and tables was kindly granted by Macmillan & Co., Physicians Post Graduate Press for the Journal of Diseases of the Nervous System, the National Association for Mental Health for the Journal of Mental Hygiene, the International Journal of Social Psychiatry, as well as by Louise V. Frisbie, Dr. Bernard C. Glueck, Drs. Eugene Revitch and Rosalee G. Weiss. Information received from the Kinsey Institute and its staff, Dr. Bruno Cormier and his research group, the National Council on Crime and Delinquency and Dr. Ian Gregory is also gratefully acknowledged.

Finally, our editors at the University of Toronto Press have painstakingly sifted the manuscript and have done a great deal to improve the presentation of the material.
