

Acknowledgments

When I began researching this biography, I already knew that writing could be a lonely task. Because of the encouragement and assistance of many people, the journey to completion proved both less desolate and less arduous than I expected.

First and foremost, I want to express my gratitude to former New Jersey governor Thomas H. Kean. From the instant I expressed an interest in writing his biography he cooperated fully in every possible way. He sat for more than one dozen interviews and always made himself available for follow-up questions. He opened his personal files to me and requested that his present and former associates, colleagues, and members of his family be of whatever assistance they could in the event I contacted them. For all this I thank him.

I want to thank Anthony Cicatiello for believing in this project from the outset and for his assistance throughout. I especially thank him for introducing me to Dale Feeney. Were it not for her readiness to check sources and facts at several libraries and in many newspapers and periodicals and her thoroughness, this book would have taken much longer to produce. I also thank the following people at Drew University for assistance they provided me in multiple ways over the past few years: Barbara Grove, Tom Evans, Tom Harris, Erin Hennessy, Peggi Howard, and Debra Meyers.

I thank the staffs at the Drew University, Princeton University, and Rutgers University libraries; the Newark, East Orange, Irvington, and Livingston libraries; the Library of Congress; the Historical Society of Petersborough, New Hampshire; and the Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Gerald R. Ford, Ronald Reagan, George H. W. Bush, and William J. Clinton presidential libraries and the Richard Nixon Library and Birthplace for allowing me access to their collections, responding to my inquiries, and providing me with much needed information. Special thanks go to Bob Clark, Cynthia Koch, and Raymond Richman at the Franklin D. Roosevelt Presidential Library; Kelly D. Barton and Shelly Jacobs at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library; Nealon DeVore at the William J. Clinton Foundation; David Goldberg, office of former president William J. Clinton; Bill Weeks at Fiduciary Trust International; and Rafael Medoff, director of the David S. Wyman Institute for Holocaust Studies for going out of their way to help me obtain materials. My heartfelt appreciation also goes to Rich Klein, Mack McLarty, Art Maurice, and Fran Wood, who did the same, and to Bill Schroh of Liberty Hall who repeatedly took time away from his other chores to comply with my requests for information contained in the files of the late U.S. Senator Hamilton Fish Kean and the late U.S. Representative Robert W. Kean. I thank former Star-Ledger cartoonist Bill Canfield for sending me clippings of all of his cartoons featuring Tom Kean. I also want to express my appreciation to Dr. Frederick M. Herrmann of the Election Law Enforcement Commission and David A. Miller of the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, New Jersey Department of State, for retrieving archived materials from their respective agencies' files for my use. I also thank Dr. Karl J. Niederer of the New Jersey Department of State's Archives and Records Management Division and his staff for their assistance.

I especially want to thank Hamilton Fish Kean II for lending me books, articles, and photographs from his personal collection and for patiently answering my many questions about Kean family history and genealogy. Several people read all or parts of this book in various stages of its evolution and provided suggestions and valuable criticism. My deepest appreciation goes to Michael Barone, William F. Buckley Jr., Larry Butler, Gail Chaddock, Richard E. Cohen, Saul Cooperman, Peter Hannaford, David Keene, Adam Klein, Chris Kojm, David Maraniss, Rick Mills, Robert P. O'Quinn, Norman Ornstein, Charles Peters, Richard Peterson, Alan Rosenthal, Larry Sabato, Scott Stossel, Martin Tolchin, Paul Trachtenberg, Grant Ujifusa, John Weingart, and Elizabeth Wood.

I express my deepest appreciation to Albert Armstrong and his able staff at the University Club of Washington, D.C., for allowing me to camp out after hours and on weekends in its wonderful business center, where much of this book was written. I especially thank Kimberly Blue and Tanya Moore for their good cheer, words of encouragement, and for looking in on me. I also thank Richard Peterson and Seyed M. Mirkhani for pulling me through multiple computer difficulties.

I remain grateful to John R. Marshall Jr. for escorting me to St. Mark's School and to Brantwood Camp, to Richard E. Noble for his insights into both institutions, and to St. Mark's Headmasters Elsa and Tony Hill and to Nikky De Louchry, Cindy Howe, and Mary Petrus, also at St. Mark's, for providing me with access to the school's archives and records. I thank all the individuals listed in the back of this book, who shared with me their recollections of Tom Kean. I especially thank former presidents Gerald R. Ford and Bill Clinton for taking time from their busy schedules to speak with me.

I want to acknowledge the generosity the Schumann Fund of New Jersey, Professor Maurice Lee Jr., and Susan N. Wilson extended to Rutgers University Press to assist in the publication of this work. Finally, I thank Marlie Wasserman and her staff at Rutgers University Press for guiding me and this project over numerous hurdles over several years. From the moment of its inception, Marlie understood how a book such as this might contribute to a better understanding of Tom Kean and of the extraordinary things he achieved for the people of New Jersey and the United States.
