Contents

NOTE ON SOURCES ix

TIMELINE OF EVENTS IN PATRIZI’S LIFE xi

Introduction 1

1 The Formation of a Political Philosopher 14
   The Young Patrizi: Poet, Teacher, and Statesman—The Crisis of 1456: Condemnation and Exile—Governor of Foligno—Calm after the Storm: Gaeta, 1464–1494

2 The Great Political Treatises 55
   The Humanist Synthetic Treatise—How to Found a Republic—Aims in Writing the De republica and the Meaning of Institutio—On Kingship and Kingly Education—Patrizi’s Historico-prudential Method

3 Principles of Republican Government 92

4 Meritocracy and the Optimal Republic 126
   Meritocracy and the Best Regime—Which Citizens Should Be Admitted to Political Office?—How to Keep the Best Men in Charge—Deliberation and the Virtue of Free Speech—Preventing Corruption and Revolution—Magistracies in the Best Republic: General Principles, the Senate, Consuls—The Legal System—Censors, Quaestors, Overseers of Provisions, Aediles—Summary: The Patrizian Republic
CONTENTS

5 The Virtuous Society 172
Educating the Virtuous Citizen—The Roles of Wife and Husband—
The Role of the State—A Scheme of Public Education—The Moral Economy: The Household, Unfree Labor, and Marriage—The Moral Economy: The City-State—Republican Architecture and Urban Planning—Piety and Religion in the Best Republic

6 Citizenship and the Virtuous Citizen 242
Two Models of Citizenship—Who Should Be a Citizen in a Republic?—
Inclusion of Workers among the Citizenry in a Republic—Admitting Foreigners to Citizenship—The Virtues of a Good Citizen—Royal Citizenship

7 Virtuous Absolutism: Patrizi’s De regno 272
Rethinking Monarchy: The View from Gaeta—The Argument for Monarchy—Can Monarchical Power Be Virtuous?—The Ideal Prince—
The Sources of Royal Legitimacy—How the King May Become Virtuous—Civil Friendship, Humanity, and Piety—Monarchy,
Dyarchy, and the Future of Republics

Conclusion: Patrizi and Modern Politics 318

Appendix A: List of Patrizi’s Works (Compiled with the assistance of Caroline Engelmayer) 331

Appendix B: Editions, Translations, and Compendia of Patrizi’s Political Works, 1518–1702 (Compiled by Victoria Pipas) 335

Appendix C: Patrizi’s Epigram 14: “What Would Make Me Happy” (Latin text) 345

Abbreviations 347

Notes 349

Bibliography 393

Acknowledgments 411

Index 413