

CONTENTS

I. A NOTE OF INTRODUCTION	1
II. THE SALT LAKE CITY LINE	8
The Salt Lake City Speech	8
The Coolidge Committee	11
Reorganizing the Commission	15
Eastman on Federal Operation	17
Railroad Reorganization	26
III. THE COMPROMISE OF GROUP INTERESTS	35
Hearings of the First Roper Committee	37
Report of the First Roper Committee	46
The Second Roper Committee	48
IV. THE CONGRESSIONAL LIMITED	56
The Pattern of Interest	57
The Case for the "Carriers' Bill"	59
The Scramble for Group Security	63
Reactions to the Measure	79
V. PATTERNS OF COORDINATION	84
Public Ownership of the Railroads	86
Grand Consolidations	101
Railroads and the NRA	110
VI. COORDINATION: CONCEPT AND ORGANIZATION	116
The Dominant Concepts: Conciliations, Consultations, and Compromise	116
Committees and Consultation	117
Conciliation and Compromise	119
The Power to Order	121
The Coordinator's Organization	127
VII. THE COORDINATOR'S OFFICE	140
Staffing the Office	140
Financing the Office	147
Relations with Other Agencies	149
Eastman and Roosevelt	151

VIII. THE MORE PERFECT UNION	164
Early Steps Toward Private Coordination	166
The Framing of the Constitution	168
Development of the AAR	177
The AAR and Federal Agencies	182
Appraisals of the AAR	185
IX. REPORTS AND REPERCUSSIONS	195
The Traffic Reports	196
Freight Traffic Report	201
Passenger Traffic Report	205
Purchasing and Standardization	207
Car Pooling	211
Fiscal Work	212
Grain Elevators	212
The Railroad Labor Reports	214
The Public Aids Report	215
X. COORDINATING THE COMPETITION	217
Eastman's General Transportation Policy	218
The National Transportation Conference	219
The Legislative Program of the Unions	222
Regulating the Motor Carriers	225
The Water Carriers	235
Coordinating the Commission	240
XI. END OF THE LINE	244
Termination and the Terminals	244
The Washington Agreement	248
End of the Line	253
None to Mourn	257
Railroad Labor	259
Exeunt Omnes	265
XII. A MATTER OF ADMINISTRATIVE STYLE	267
APPENDIX	279
NOTES	287
INDEX	333

THE POLITICS OF RAILROAD
COORDINATION

1933-1936

