

• • •

Contents

	Acknowledgments	ix
	Introduction: Coming to Terms with the Future	1
1	The Generation of 1890	19
	At the Dawn of an Uncertain Future	20
	Socialists of the Lectern	29
	The Health of the Nation	39
	Naumann, Weber, and the Legacy of 1890	51
2	Adolf Damaschke and the Language of Popular Nationalism	67
	From the Rental Barracks to Land Reform	69
	"In Service to the Fatherland"	81
	Land Reform as a "Task of Enlightenment"	95
3	Gertrud Bäumer's New Liberalism and the Politics of Womanhood	104
	From Family Life to the Life of the Nation	108
	Liberal Humanism and Eugenics at the Fin de Siècle	128
	Against Masculine Politics: Toward a "New Form of Feminine Kultur"	142
4	Werner Sombart's "Anti-Politik" and the Vicissitudes of Socialism "as a Cultural Factor"	148
	The Ideals of Social Policy	152
	Social Science and the Social Movement	171
	"Twilight of the Gods"	183

5	The Wilhelmine Reform Milieu	215
	Learning the Social Question	230
	Social Circles	256
	Wiring the Network	281
	 Epilogue: War and Revolutions	 313
	Select Bibliography	329
	Index	351