Contents

List of Figures and Tables \hspace{1cm} v
Notes on Contributors \hspace{1cm} vi
Acknowledgements \hspace{1cm} x
Typographical Note \hspace{1cm} xii

Introduction: Why Diversity, Inclusion, and Decolonization Matter
Abby Day, Lois Lee, Dave S.P. Thomas, and James Spickard

PART I  Changing Universities

1. Negotiating Diversity, a Personal Reflection
   Martin Stringer

2. Demystifying the ‘Decolonizing’ and ‘Diversity’ Slippage: Reflections from Sociology
   Ali Meghji, Seetha Tan, and Laura Wain

3. Doing Diversity Inclusively: ‘East Asians’ in Western Universities
   Lin Ma

4. This Island’s Mine: University Teaching as Inclusive Dramaturgy
   Danny Braverman

5. Emergent Tensions in Diversity and Inclusion Work in Universities: Reflections on Policy and Practice
   Samantha Brennan, Gwen Chapman, Belinda Leach, and Alexandra Rodney

PART II  Diversifying Curricula

6. How ‘Diverse’ is Your Reading List? Tools, Tips, and Challenges
   Karen Schucan Bird

   Dave S.P. Thomas
Decolonizing Research Methods: Practices, Challenges, and Opportunities
Sara Ewing

Towards an Intersectional Feminist Pedagogy of Gender-Based Violence
Denise Buiten, Ellen Finlay, and Rosemary Hancock

PART III Diversifying Research and Scholarship

How Would a World Sociology Think? Towards Intellectual Inclusion
James Spickard

Whom We Cite: A Reflection on the Limits and Potentials of Critical Citation Practices
Januschka Schmidt

Scholarship in a Globalized World: The Publishing Ecosystem and Alternatives to the Oligopoly
Paige Mann

PART IV Overcoming Intellectual Colonialism

Dealing with the Westernisation of Chinese Higher Education: Evidence from a Social Science Department
Fabio Bolzonar

Opportunities and Challenges in Integrating Indigenous Peoples and Cultural Diversity in International Studies
Gretchen Abuso

Decolonial Praxis beyond the Classroom: Reflecting on Race and Violence
Federico Settler

Epilogue: What We Have Learned
Abby Day, Lois Lee, Dave S.P. Thomas, and James Spickard

Index