

TABLES

- 2.1a Change in Democratic Party affect as a function of change in Democratic candidate affect / 25
- 2.1b Change in Republican Party affect as a function of change in Republican candidate affect / 26
- 2.2 Coefficients from regressions of party affect on candidate affect over the 2008 election year / 30
- 3.1 Approval of the president's job performance and favorable views of president's party / 36
- 3.2 Positive views of the president and positive views of president's party / 36
- 3.3 Consistent positive or negative opinions of the president and his party (percent) / 40
- 3.4 Consistent approval/disapproval of president's performance and favorable/unfavorable opinions of his party (percent) / 40
- 3.5 Favorable opinion of opposition party as a function of presidential approval / 43
- 3.6 Positive views of the president and the opposition party / 44
- 3.7 Approval of the president's job performance and approval / favorable opinion of the president's party or party leaders in Congress / 50
- 3.8 Ratings of the president and president's congressional parties performance as "excellent" or "pretty good" (Harris Polls) / 51
- 3.9 Approval of the president's job performance and opinion of opposition party or party leaders in Congress / 53
- 3.10 Ratings of the president and opposition congressional party's performance as "excellent" or "very good" (Harris Polls) / 53
- 3.11 Approval of the president's job performance and approval of parties or party leaders in Congress, controlling for congressional approval / 54

- 3.12 Ratings of the president and congressional parties performance as “excellent” or “pretty good,” controlling for quarterly congressional approval (Harris Polls) / 54
- 3.13 Approval of the president’s job performance and approval of parties or party leaders in Congress, controlling for congressional approval, by control of the House, G. W. Bush and Obama administrations / 55
- 3.14 Effects of president’s thermometer ratings on party thermometer ratings, 1978–2016 (regression coefficients) / 56
- 3.15 Relationships between party and president thermometer ratings over time / 59
- 3.16 Party thermometer ratings as a function of the president’s thermometer scores (Democracy Corps Polls) / 60
- 4.1 Presidential approval and perceptions of relative party competence / 67
- 4.2 Estimated effects of presidential approval on individual respondents’ perceptions of relative party superiority in handling the most important problem / 69
- 4.3 Presidential approval and the party more trusted to cope with the nation’s problems / 70
- 4.4 Presidential approval and preference for president or rival congressional party in handling national problems / 72
- 4.5 Approval of the president’s handling of the economy and party advantage on managing the economy / 80
- 4.6 President’s party’s advantage over rival party in Congress in trust on handling the economy as a function of approval of president’s performance on the economy / 83
- 4.7 The effects of presidential approval on education on relative party reputation for handling education / 88
- 4.8 Approval of the president’s handling of foreign policy and party advantage on managing foreign policy, Reagan through Obama administrations / 91
- 4.9 Approval of G. W. Bush’s handling of terrorism and the Republican Party advantage on dealing with it / 94
- 4.10 Approval of president’s job performance and opinion on which party is better for / cares more about “people like you” or “the middle class” / 98
- 5.1 ANES questions on ideology and policy positions from the cumulative data file / 101
- 5.2 Regression of mean locations of parties on locations of presidents / presidential candidates across election years / 107
- 5.3 Regression of mean locations of parties on locations of presidents / presidential candidates across election years, by party identification / 108
- 5.4 Effects of president/candidate location on party location on the 7-point liberal–conservative scale (regression coefficients, individual surveys) / 109
- 5.5 Effects of president/candidate location on party location on the 7-point issue scales (regression coefficients, individual surveys) / 111

- 5.6 Changes in party location on ideology and issues scales as a function of changes in the president's location (with controls) / 113
- 5.7 Coefficients from regressing party locations on presidents / presidential candidates and House candidates locations on the 7-point ideology and issue scales (with controls) / 116
- 5.8 Coefficients from regressing placement of Democratic Party on placement of Barack Obama and Democratic congressional candidates on the 7-point liberal-conservative scale, 2010-2014 / 117
- 5.9 Coefficients from regressing placement of the Republican Party on placement of Mitt Romney on the 7-point liberal-conservative scale, 2012 / 118
- 5.10 Coefficients from regressing placements of the parties on placement of the presidential candidates, Obama, and the House and Senate candidates on the 7-point liberal-conservative scale in 2016 (with controls) / 119
- 6.1 The effects of presidential approval on changes in individual party identification / 130
- 6.2 The effects of presidential approval on changes in individual party identification (with lagged presidential approval) / 131
- 6.3 Presidential approval and change in party identification between panel waves (weighted averages) / 132
- 6.4 Change in party identification as function of change in candidate affect, 2008-2009 / 134
- 6.5 Presidential approval and macropartisanship / 139
- 7.1 Party identification of whites, 1952-2016 (percentages) / 162
- 8.1 Ticket splitting and party loyalty in presidential and state elections (percentages) / 173
- 8.2 Net generic vote for president's party's candidate as a function of presidential approval / 176
- 8.3 Net preference for president's party's control of congress as a function of presidential approval / 176
- 8.4 Net number of House seats won or lost by the president's party, 1946-2016 / 181
- 8.5 Presidential approval and partisan voting in midterm elections, 1974-2014 (percent defecting to other party's House candidate) / 185
- 9.1 Polarized views of parties as a function of polarized views of the president / 193
- 9.2 Age, education, and the presidential vote in 2016 (percent voting for Trump) / 202
- 9.3 Opinions of groups and policies in 2016 / 204
- 9.4 Favorable opinion of the Republican Party as a function of Trump's job approval (January 2017-April 2018) / 215

