ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The makers of dictionaries, past and present, especially those who recorded the slang and disrespectful words of their day, are the providers for this study.

Several of my colleagues in sociology at the University of Connecticut read all or part of the manuscript in its various stages and gave me cheer. Among them, especially, I thank Mark Abrahamson, Michael Gordon, Josef Gugler, and Charles Logan for their advice. Harold Abramson encouraged me from the beginning and put many sources into my hands.

Friends of the project in other disciplines and other places helped as much. Especially, Polly Reynolds Allen gave much time to advise me well on every aspect of the project. Reinhold Aman generously corresponded with me about the study and led me to many sources.

The University of Connecticut Research Foundation awarded a small grant to launch the study and later supported typing and photocopying expenses.
