BREAKING THROUGH THE NOISE
Studies in the Modern Presidency is an innovative new book series that brings together established and emerging voices in modern presidential research, from the Nixon administration to the present. While works on the modern Congress abound, this series seeks to expand the literature available on the presidency and the executive branch.

Scholars and journalists alike are increasingly writing and reporting on issues such as presidential rhetoric, executive-legislative relations, executive privilege, signing statements, and so on. We are committed to publishing outstanding research and analysis that reaches beyond conventional approaches to provide scholars, students, and the general public with insightful investigations into presidential politics and power.

This series will feature short and incisive books that chart new territory, offer a range of perspectives, and frame the intellectual debate on the modern presidency.

A list of the books in this series can be found online at http://www.sup.org/modernpresidency.
BREAKING THROUGH THE NOISE

PRESIDENTIAL LEADERSHIP, PUBLIC OPINION, AND THE NEWS MEDIA

Matthew Eshbaugh-Soha and Jeffrey S. Peake

STANFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS
Stanford, California
For my parents, Joe and Susan Soha
—Matthew Eshbaugh-Soha

For Jacob and Nathan
—Jeffrey S. Peake