CONTENTS

LIST OF TABLES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>xiii</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PREFACE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Page</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>xvii</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

PART I: THE PEASANTS’ SOCIOECONOMIC CONDITIONS

CHAPTER 1

The Role of Demographics 5

CHAPTER 2

Differentiations 10

- The “Peasant-gardeners” and the “Agricultural Peasants” 10
- The Pacific Peasants and the Peasants of Warrior Origin 12
- The “Orthodox” and the “Heterodox” Peasants 13
- The Clanless and Clan-linked Peasants 22
- The Landed and Landless Peasants, the Traditional Urban Landowners, and the Modern Mustathmirs 29

CHAPTER 3

Living Conditions 38

- The Distribution of Agricultural Income prior to and since the Restructuring of Agrarian Relations 38
- The Lessening Cost of Agricultural Credit 53
- The Reduced Tax Burden 59
- The Rapid Electrification of the Countryside 63
- The Spread of Safe Water Networks 66
- The Expansion of Rural Health Care 66
- The Development of the Means of Communication and Conveyance 69
- The Intensification of the State’s Educational Efforts 71

CHAPTER 4

Economic Efficiency 75

- Land Use 75
- The Agricultural Growth Trends and Related Causal Factors 81
- Possible Lines of Future Progress 91

PART II: THE PRE-BATH PATTERNS OF PEASANT CONSCIOUSNESS, ORGANIZATION, AND POLITICAL BEHAVIOR

CHAPTER 5

Introduction: Portraits of Peasants by Ibn Khaldūn, Balzac, Trotsky, Father Ayrout, and J. C. Scott, and Their Relevance 95
CONTENTS

CHAPTER 6
The First Peasant Organizations or the Corporations of Peasant-gardeners from the Seventeenth to the Twentieth Century 98

CHAPTER 7
Şūfîsm among the Peasants: A Source of Political Quietism? 103

CHAPTER 8
The Proneness in Ottoman and Mandate Times of the Peasant Mountainers to Rebellion and of the Peasants of the Open Plains to Indirect Methods of Defense 109

CHAPTER 9
The Communists and the Peasants 118

CHAPTER 10
The Arab Socialists, or the First Agrarian Party in Syria’s History 124

PART III: THE RURAL AND PEASANT ASPECTS OF BA’THISM 131
CHAPTER 11
The Old Ba’th and the Political Rearing of a Rural Intelligentsia 133

CHAPTER 12
The “Transitional” Ba’th or the Ba’th of the 1960s, the Rise of the Lesser Rural or Village Notability, and the Ruralization of the Army, the Party, and, to Some Degree, the State Bureaucracy 144

The Social Origins of the Members of the Military Committee 145
The Causal Factors behind the Ascent of the Lesser Rural or Village Notability 155
The Stepped-up Ruralization of the Armed Forces 156
Reasons for the Paramount Influence of the ’Alawî Officers 157
The Rural Penetration of the State Bureaucracy 160
The Enhanced Rural Coloring of the Ba’th Party 161
The Agrarian Policies of the 1960s and Their Social Meaning 162
The Downfall of the Mainstream Ba’thisms of the 1960s and Its Causes 170

CHAPTER 13
The Post-1970 Asad-molded, Career-oriented Ba’th 176
Qâ’id-ul-Masirah 176
The General Characteristics and Social Composition of the New Ba’th 177
The Reasons Why the Proportion of Peasants in the Party Declined in the 1980s and Rose Subsequently 188

PART IV: ḤĀFIZ AL-ASAD, OR SYRIA’S FIRST RULER OF PEASANT EXTRACTION 191
CHAPTER 14
Asad’s Background, Early Education, Party Apprenticeship, and First Political Battle 193
CHAPTER 15
Asad’s Military Career and Military Qualifications, or the Inferences as to His Generalship Deducible from His Performance in the 1967 and 1973 Wars and during Israel’s Invasion of Lebanon

CHAPTER 16
The Varied Aspects of Power in Asad’s State

A Few Preliminary General Observations on “Democratic” Rhetoric and the Realities of Life

Asad’s Public and Private Views of the Power of Men in the Mass and Their Aptitude for Politics

The Four Levels of Asad’s Power Structure and Their Basic Characteristics

CHAPTER 17
Focusing for a While on the More Subtle Forms of Power

CHAPTER 18
The Organization of Power at the Second Tier of Asad’s Polity and Its Partaking, among Other Features, of a Basic Trait of Peasant Life

The Elemental Instinct for Family and Clan and Its Impact

The Lesser Rural Notability and the Inner Core of the Regime’s Leadership

Is Asad’s Regime Sectarian?

The Abuse of Authority in High Places and Its Prime Symbol

The “Succession Crisis”

New Tensions

A Word on the Security and Intelligence Networks and Their Key Figures

CHAPTER 19
A Glance at the Third Level of Power or at the Composition of the Upper Elite of the Ba’th Party (1970–1997)

CHAPTER 20
Shifting the Focus to the Fourth Level of Power, or an Analysis, by Way of Illustration, of the Role of the Peasants’ General Union, the Party’s Principal Ancillary Mass Organization

CHAPTER 21
A Closer View of the Summit of Power, or Asad’s Personality as a Factor in the Maintenance of His Rule and the Thwarting of His Opponents

CHAPTER 22
Of the Manner in Which Asad Dealt with the Muslim Brethren and their Militants, and the Light It Throws on the Methods by Which He Holds Sway

Coping with the Muslim Brethren by Propitiating the ‘Ulamā’ and How the ‘Ulamā’ Responded

Benefiting from the Divisions within the Brotherhood
CONTENTS

Encouraging the Quietism of the Brotherhood’s “Damascus Faction”? 265
Facing the Militants’ Violent Blows and Their Large-scale Armed Rebellions, or the Gravest Internal Challenge to His Regime 266
Using Force at First Guardedly and Differentiating between the Militants, Leaving Open a Line of Retreat for “the Misled” among Them 270
Feeling out the Country’s Temper 271
Altering the Sectarian Composition of the Ba’ath Command and Placing in High-Profile Posts More Sunnis from Families of High Religious Status 271
Linking the Irreconcilable Militants to the C.I.A. and Taking the Problem by the Horns and Going the Limit 272
Frustrating the Muslim Brethren in Exile 275
More Firmly in the Saddle than Ever 277

CHAPTER 23
Asad’s Main Concepts at the Level of Regional Politics: Ends or Instruments? 279
Asad and Pan-Arabism 279
Asad and the Iraq-Iran War 283
The Conflict with Israel and the Concept of Strategic Parity 285

CHAPTER 24
An In-depth Study of Asad’s Relations with Fāṭiḥ and the P.L.O. from 1966 to 1997 and the Light It Sheds on His Aims and Techniques 287
The First Spell of Fāṭiḥ-Ba’ath Cooperation 287
“The Affair of Yūsuf ‘Urābi”” 288
From the 1967 Arab Defeat to the Jordanian Crisis of 1970–1971 289
The Twists and Turns prior to and during the 1975–1976 Lebanese Civil Conflict and the Slide from Latent Enmity into Open War 292
An Interlude of Apparent Harmony 300
The 1982 Israeli Invasion of Lebanon and the Virtual Abandonment of the Palestinian Resistance to Its Fate 302
The Rupture of Relations and the Battle of Tripoli 303
‘Arafāṭ Springs Surprises 307
The ‘Arafāṭ-King Ḥusayn 1985 Initiative 308
The Reemergence of Fāṭiḥ in Lebanon’s Military Equation, the Alleged “Assurances” to Israel, and the “War of the Camps” of 1985–1988 309
The Intifāḍah, the Tenuous 1988 Agreement, and the Continued Divergence of Policies 312
Turning a New Page? 315
‘Arafāṭ Goes His Own Way 315
Pulling Together Again 318
Some Conclusions 320

CHAPTER 25
Epilogue 323
CONTENTS

APPENDIX
Members of the Syrian Ba’th Party (Regional) Commands, 1963–1997 331

NOTES 355

SELECT BIBLIOGRAPHY 391

INDEX I: SUBJECTS 405

INDEX II: PERSONAL NAMES 409

INDEX III: NAMES OF FAMILIES AND TRIBES 414