TABLE OF CONTENTS

Jan Firbas: Josef Vachek's Work in General and English Linguistics ........................................... 7
A Preliminary Remark ......................................................................................................................... 14

A. GENERAL PHONOLOGY

- Phonemes and Phonological Units (1936) ...................................................................................... 15
- Can the Phoneme be defined in terms of time? (1937) ................................................................. 20
- The Non-Static Aspect of the Synchronically Studied Phonological System (1967) ................... 23
- Notes on One Aspect of the Internal Structuration of the Phonological System (1967) .......... 29
- On Some Basic Principles of “Classical” Phonology (1964) ....................................................... 44

B. OTHER GENERAL LINGUISTIC ISSUES

- On Functional Complementation as an All-Level Analytical Procedure in Language Research (1965) .......................................................................................................................... 67
- On the Integration of the Peripheral Elements into the System of Language (1966) ................. 77
- On the Interplay of External and Internal Factors in the Development of Language (1962) .... 91
- A Note on Future Prospects of Diachronistic Language Research (1968) .................................. 104
- Zum Problem der geschriebenen Sprache (1939) ........................................................................... 112
- Written Language and Printed Language (1948) ........................................................................... 121
- Some Remarks on Writing and Phonetic Transcription (1945—9) ............................................. 127
- The Present State of Research in Written Language (1972) ....................................................... 134

C. ENGLISH PHONOLOGY

- The Phonematic Status of Modern English Long Vowels and Diphthongs (1963) ...................... 147
- The Place of [oI] in the Phonic Pattern of Southern British English (1965) ................................. 162
- Phonemic Remarks on the “Long Mixed Vowel” of Modern English (1965) ............................. 168
- On Peripheral Phonemes of Modern English (1964) ..................................................................... 176
  - I. Peripheral Elements in the Structure of Language ................................................................. 176
  - II. The Elimination of the Modern English /h/-Phoneme ......................................................... 179
  - III. The Early Middle English Phoneme /J/ and the Personal Pronoun She ............................. 194
  - IV. The Phonematic Values of the English Wh-Sounds ............................................................ 204
  - V. The Problem of the Phonematic Status of the Modern English [η] -Sound .................... 224
  - VI. The Decline of the Modern English /r/ .................................................................................. 233
  - VII. The Phonematic Relation of Modern English [f] and [ʃ] ................................................... 246
  - VIII. The Modern English “Short Mixed Vowel” as a Phonematic Problem ........................... 253
  - IX. The Place of [oI] in the Modern English Phonematic Pattern ............................................ 261

Unauthenticated
Download Date | 6/8/19 2:03 AM
Some Thoughts on the Phonology of Cockney English (1962) ........................................... 288
Some Phonological Problems of Modern English Sonant Sounds (1969) .................. 297
Remarks on the Sound Pattern of English (1970) ......................................................... 304

D. OTHER PROBLEMS OF ENGLISH
Some Less Familiar Aspect of the Analytical Trend of English (1961) ................... 310
   I. Some Remarks on the Analytical Character of English ........................................... 310
   II. The Status of the Word in Modern English ......................................................... 315
   III. The “Possessive Case” of Modern English ......................................................... 328
   IV. The Compactness of the Modern English Sentence ............................................ 337
   V. The Oppositions of Quantity and Quality in Modern English Vowels ................. 353
   VI. The Oppositions of Voice and Tension in Modern English Paired Consonants .... 364
   VII. The Eclipse of the Modern English Neutral Consonant ..................................... 372
Notes on Gender in Modern English (1964) ................................................................. 386
On Social Differentiation of English Speech Habits (1960) ...................................... 392
Some Sociolinguistic Factors in the Development of English (1972) ......................... 400
Two Chapters on Written English (1959) ................................................................. 408
   I. On the Functional Hierarchy of Spoken and Written Utterances ............. 409
   II. Some Remarks on the Development of the Written Norm in English .......... 421
Index of persons ........................................................................................................... 442
Index of subjects ........................................................................................................ 446