

LINGUISTICS

Our linguistics program is internationally known for its high quality and comprehensiveness. Titles under our imprint De Gruyter Mouton encompass the entire field of linguistics and are published in English. This portfolio's excellent content has made De Gruyter Mouton one of the world's leading publishers in language sciences. We publish an internationally-renowned range of research series and journals and are particularly known for our authoritative reference works: handbooks, atlases, and databases.

Online Reference Work

ISSN 2198-770X

Enhanced Electronic Grammars (EEG) features comprehensive descriptions of languages from around the world. Through this unique online resource, full grammars are made available together in an interlinked and semantically-annotated format, allowing granular access to the grammatical data and enabling cross-language research of several grammars at the same time. In addition to cross-linguistic queries, each grammar can also be read and researched individually.

Facts & Figures:

- ▶ Contains comprehensive grammatical material on more than 30 languages
- ▶ In biannual updates, a total of 6 languages per year are added
- ▶ More than 500 chapters of descriptive grammar publications, which were specially prepared and enriched for usage in EEG

OUTSTANDING AUTHORS

- ▶ Noam Chomsky, MIT, USA, author of Syntactic Structures, Studies on Semantics in Generative Grammar and Current Issues in Linguistic Theory
- ▶ Bernard Comrie, Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology, Germany, editor of the series Empirical Approaches to Language Typology (EALT) and Mouton Grammar Library (MGL)
- ▶ William Labov, University of Pennsylvania, USA, author of The Atlas of North American English (rated “Outstanding Academic Title” by Choice Magazine)

“What I like best about Mouton is the way its staff understands its clientele: linguists. However complex a project may be, Mouton will do its best to find a solution that combines the highest academic standards, the desires of its authors and editors, and the reality of the world of international academic publishing.”

Prof. Dr. Bernard Comrie, Max Planck Institute for Evolutionary Anthropology, Leipzig, Germany.
