the journal "Der Donauraum", founded in 1956, edited by the Institute for the Danube Region and Central Europe (IDM) and published by Böhlau since 1993, deals with up-to-date research questions regarding politics, history, society, economy, science, art and culture in a multidisciplinary way. Geographical focus lies on the countries in the Danube region and Central and South-Eastern Europe, special attention is given to the integration of comments of people from the target region. Thus, the journal contributes essentially to European integration and international cooperation. Scientifically well-established, up-to-date and easy to understand, "Der Donauraum" is addressed to informed expert groups, qualified decision makers and to an interested readership, which appreciates the cross-curricular and transnational perspective.
