The Nordic Languages, Table of content

Publishers:
- Oscar Bandle (Zürich),
- Kurt Braunmüller (Hamburg),
- Ernst Håkon Jahr (Tromsø),
- Allan Karker (Århus)
- Hans-Peter Naumann (Zürich),
- Ulf Telemann (Lund),
- in Cooperation with Gun Widmark (Uppsala) and Lennart Elemevik (Uppsala)

1. The Nordic language area and the languages in the North of Europe. A historical overview
2. The Nordic languages in relation to the other Germanic languages
3. Diachrony and synchrony in Nordic language history
4. Previous attempts at establishing periods in Nordic language history
5. The data basis of a Nordic language history
6. Previous attempts at writing a Nordic language history
7. Outline of research on Scandinavian language history before 1800
8. Recent research in Danish language history. An overview
9. Recent research in Swedish language history. An overview
10. Recent research in Norwegian language history. An overview
11. Recent research in Icelandic language history. An overview
12. Recent research in Faroese language history. An overview
13. Nordic contributions to historical linguistics before 1800
14. Contributions to Nordic language history by non-Scandinavian linguists
15. The contribution of the Nordic countries to historical-comparative linguistics
16. The contribution of Scandinavian neogrammarians
17. The Scandinavian contribution to structuralism
18. Nordic language history and structural linguistics
19. Nordic language history and generative transformational grammar
20. Nordic language history and language typology
21. Nordic language history and research on word order
22. Nordic language history and research in universals and theories of linguistic change
23. Nordic language history and sociolinguistics
24. Nordic language history and research on languages in contact and on multilingualism
25. Nordic language history and research in styles and registers
26. Nordic language history and pragmatics
27. Nordic language history and research on types of texts
28. Nordic language history and phraseology/idiomatics
29. Nordic language history and historical contrastive linguistics
30. Nordic language history: Semiotics and the theory of naturalness
31. Nordic language history and (lexical) semantics
32. Nordic language history and computer-aided lexicography
33. General history of Nordic dialectology
34. The contribution of Nordic dialectology to language history
35. Nordic language history and current trends in dialectology
36. Nordic language history and studies in general history
37. Nordic language history and archaeology
38a. Nordic lexical items and cultural history: Denmark and Sweden
38b. Nordic lexical items and cultural history: Norway and Iceland
39. Nordic language history and human geography
40. Nordic language history and legal history
41. Nordic language history and the history of economics and administration
42. Nordic language history and the history of ideas I: Humanism
43. Nordic language history and the history of ideas II: Rationalism and Enlightenment since the 18th century
44. Nordic language history and the history of ideas III: Nationalism, identity and democratic movements in the 19th and 20th centuries
45. Nordic language history and religion/ecclesiastical history I: The pre-Christian period
46. Nordic language history and religion/ecclesiastical history II: Christianization
47. Nordic language history and religion/ecclesiastical history III: Luther’s Reformation
48. Nordic language history and religion/ecclesiastical history IV: From pietism to the present
49. Nordic language history and natural and technical sciences
50. Nordic language history and literary history I: Denmark
51. Nordic language history and literary history II: Sweden
52. Nordic language history and literary history III: Norway
53. Nordic language history and literary history IV: Iceland
54. Nordic language history and literary history V: Faroe Islands
55. Nordic language history and the history of philosophy
55a. The special case of Grundtvig: poet, philosopher, politician, educator
56. Nordic language history and the history of translation I: Danish
57. Nordic language history and the history of translation II: Swedish
58. Nordic language history and the history of translation III: Norwegian
59. Nordic language history and the history of translation IV: Icelandic
59a. Nordic language history and the history of translation V: Faroese
60. Nordic language history and philology: Editing earlier texts
61. Nordic language history and computational research
62. Nordic, Germanic, Indoeuropean and the structuring of the Germanic language family
63. Nordic-Gothic linguistic relations
64. Nordic-West Germanic relations
65. Nordic-North Sea Germanic relations
66. Contacts with non-Germanic languages I: Relations to the West
67. Contacts with non-Germanic languages II: Relations to the East
68. Scandinavia in the light of the ancient (Arabic, Russian) tradition
69. The Proto-Nordic period. A historical survey
70. Delimitation of Proto-Nordic from Common Germanic and Old Norse
71. A survey of Proto-Nordic sources
72. Proto-Nordic: Finding places and geographical divisions from an archeological perspective
73. Runes: Origin, development of the futhark, functions, applications and methodological considerations
74. The Proto-Nordic linguistic system from a typological point of view: Phonology, graphematics, morphology, syntax and word order
75. The development of Proto-Nordic lexicon
76. The development of Proto-Nordic personal names
77. The development of Proto-Nordic place-names
78. Sociolinguistic perspectives and language contacts in Proto-Nordic
80. From Proto-Nordic to Old Norse: Definition and delimitation of the period
81. Language and history of the Merovingian and Viking periods in Scandinavia and the extension of Nordic
82. The sources of the transitional period between Proto-Nordic and Old Norse
83. Phonological and graphemathical developments from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
84. Morphological developments from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
85. Syntactic developments from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
86. Lexical developments from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
87. Developments of personal names from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
88. The development of place-names from Proto-Nordic to Old Norse
89. Sociolinguistic perspectives in the transitional period between Proto-Nordic and Old Norse
90. Language contacts in the period between Proto-Nordic and Old Norse
91. Scandinavian history in the Middle Ages and the extension of Nordic: Cultural and historical preconditions of language
92. Old Norse: A definition and delimitation of the period
93. The written tradition of Old Norse: The runic and Latin script
94. The history of Old Norse manuscripts I: Old Icelandic
95. The history of Old Norse manuscripts II: Old Norwegian (incl. Faroese)
96. The history of Old Norse manuscripts III: Old Swedish
97. The history of Old Norse manuscripts IV: Old Danish
98. The development of Latin script (paleography) I: in Iceland
99. The development of Latin script II: in Norway
100. The development of Latin script III: in Sweden
101. The development of Latin script IV: in Denmark
102. History of Old Norse metrics
103. The various Old Norse dialects, their systems and their typology: A general survey of the classical Old Norse of the High Middle Ages
104. The phonological systems of Old Norse I: Old Icelandic and Old Norwegian
105. The phonological systems of Old Norse II: Old Swedish and Old Danish
106. The morphology of Old Norse I: Old Icelandic and Old Norwegian
107. The morphology of Old Norse II: Old Swedish and Old Danish
108. The syntax of Old Norse
109. The Old Norse lexicon
110. The development of Old Norse personal names
111. The development of Old Norse place-names
112. Old Norse types of texts I: Old Icelandic and Old Norwegian
113. Old Norse types of texts II: Old Swedish and Old Danish
114. Translations and interferences by translation in Old Norse I: Old Icelandic and Old Norwegian
114a. Translations and interferences by translation in Old Norse II: Old Swedish and Old Danish
115. Dialects and written language in Old Norse I: Old Icelandic and Old Norwegian
115a. Dialects and written language in Old Norse II: Old Swedish and Old Danish
116. Old Norse culture in the light of language history
117. Language contacts during the Old Norse period I: with England, Friesland, the Netherlands and the Hanseatic League
118. Language contacts during the Old Norse period II: with Eastern Europe
119. Language contacts during the Old Norse period III: The impact of Christianity on Old Norse
120. History and development of Old Norse outside the Scandinavia of today
121. Problems of drawing a borderline between Old Norse and Early Modern Nordic
122. Expansion and diminution of the Nordic language area in the Late Middle Ages and Early Modern Times
123. History of Scandinavia and sociocultural developments in the Late Middle Ages and in Early Modern Times
124. Manuscripts and bookprinting in late medieval Scandinavia and in Early Modern Times
125. The development of metrics in Late Medieval and Early Modern Times
126. Phonological developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic I: West Scandinavian
127. Phonological developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic II: Danish
128. Phonological developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic III: Swedish
129. Phonological developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic IV: A typological and contrastive survey
130. Morphological developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: Inflexion and word formation
131. Syntactic developments from Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic
132. Lexical developments in the Late Middle Ages
133. The development of personal names in the Late Middle Ages
134. The development of place-names in the Late Middle Ages
135. From Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: Sociolinguistic aspects (gestrichen 2/00)
136. From Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: The development of types of texts
137. From Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: The language of the translations I: Icelandic and Norwegian translations
137a. From Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: The language of the translations II: Swedish ations
138. From Old Norse to Early Modern Nordic: The development of oral and literary styles
139. Language contacts in the Late Middle Ages and in Early Modern Times
140. Language loss and destandardization in the Late Middle Ages and in Early Modern Times
141. Historical and sociocultural preconditions of language in Scandinavia from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
142. The loss of territory in the Nordic language area
143. Manuscripts and bookprinting from the mid-16th century to 1800
144. The development of metrics from the mid-16th century to 1800
145. The development of Icelandic from the mid-16th century to 1800
146. The development of Swedish from the mid-16th century to 1800
147. The development of Danish from the mid-16th century to 1800
148. The development of Norwegian local dialects and Dano-Norwegian from the mid-16th century to 1800
149. The development of the lexicon from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
150. The development of personal names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
150a. The development of personal names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century: Denmark
150b. The development of personal names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century: Sweden
150c. The development of personal names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century: Norway
150d. The development of personal names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century: Iceland and Färöer
151. The development of place-names from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
151a. The development of the Nordic languages from the mid-16th century to the end of the 18th century: Sociolinguistic aspects
152. The development of the types of texts in the Nordic languages from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
153. The significance of translations for the linguistic development from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
154. Language contacts in the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries
155. The role of schools and education from the 16th to the end of the 18th century
156. The role of language cultivators and grammarians for the Nordic linguistic development in the 16th, 17th and 18th centuries
157. Scandinavia in the 19th century as background for language development
158. The impact of education and literacy on language development in the 19th century
159. Sources of written and oral languages in the 19th century
160. The development of metrics in 19th century poetry
161. The Nordic languages in the 19th century I: Phonology and orthography
162. The Nordic languages in the 19th century II: Morphology
163. The Nordic languages in the 19th century III: Syntactic developments
164. The lexicon of the Nordic languages in the 19th century
165. Nationalism and Scandinavianism in the development of the Nordic languages in the 19th century
166. The special linguistic development in 19th century Norway
166a. Swedish in Finland in the 19th century
167. Coincidences and divergencies in Danish and Swedish language development
167a. The development of the types of texts in the 19th century
168. Standard and colloquial languages in Scandinavia in the 19th century
168a. The language of the 19th century translations I: Swedish
168b. The language of the 19th century translations II: Danish
168c. The language of the 19th century translations III: Norwegian
168d. The language of the 19th century translations IV: Icelandic 168e. The language of the 19th century translations V: Faroese
169. Sociolinguistic profiles of the Nordic languages in the 19th century
170. Language contact phenomena in Scandinavia in the 19th century
171. Stylistic developments in the Nordic languages in the 19th century
172. Conversational culture in 19th century Scandinavia
173. The historical and cultural conditions for the Nordic languages in the 20th century
175. The standard languages and their systems in the 20th century I: Icelandic
176. The standard languages and their systems in the 20th century II: Faroese
177. The standard languages and their systems in the 20th century III: Norwegian
178. The standard languages and their systems in the 20th century IV: Swedish
179. The standard languages and their systems in the 20th century V: Danish
180. The special case of Norway in the 20th century: Language conflict and language planning
180a. Swedish in Finland in the 20th century
180b. Metrics in 20th century poetry
181. Types of texts in the Nordic languages of the 20th century
182. Written language and oral colloquial language in the 20th century: A survey
183. Dialects and regional linguistic varieties in the 20th century I: Sweden and Finland
184. Dialects and regional linguistic varieties in the 20th century II: Norway
185. Dialects and regional linguistic varieties in the 20th century III: Denmark
186. Written language and forms of speech in Icelandic in the 20th century
187. Written language and forms of speech in Faroese in the 20th century
188. Social stratification in the present-day Nordic languages I: Swedish
189. Social stratification in the present-day Nordic languages II: Norwegian
190. Social stratification in the present-day Nordic languages III: Danish
191. Social stratification in the present-day Nordic languages IV: Icelandic
191a. Social stratification in the present-day Nordic languages V: Faroese
191b. The language of broadcasting and television in the 20th century
192. Trends in the linguistic development since 1945 I: Swedish
193. Trends in the linguistic development since 1945 II: Danish
194. Trends in the linguistic development since 1945 III: Norwegian
195. Trends in the linguistic development since 1945 IV: Icelandic and Faroese
196. Future perspectives for the history of the Nordic languages
197. The typological development of the Nordic languages I: Phonology
198. The typological development of the Nordic languages II: Morphology and syntax
199. Sociolinguistic structures chronologically I: Danish
200. Sociolinguistic structures chronologically II: Swedish
201. Sociolinguistic structures chronologically III: Norwegian
202. Sociolinguistic structures chronologically IV: Icelandic and Faroese
203. Special languages and their social and functional dimensions I: Socially dependent varieties
204. Special languages and their social and functional dimensions II: Languages for specific purposes and institutional linguistic varieties
205. Special languages and their social and functional dimensions
207. Language cultivation and language planning I: Denmark
208. Language cultivation and language planning II: Sweden
210. Language cultivation and language planning III: Norway
211. Language cultivation and language planning IV: Iceland
212. Language cultivation and language planning V: Faroe Islands
213. General tendencies in Nordic language cultivation and language planning
214. Interscandinavian language contacts I: Internal communication and comprehensibility problems
215. Interscandinavian language contacts II: Linguistic influences
216. Interscandinavian language contacts III: The Norwegian form of bilingualism
217. Language contacts outside Scandinavia I: in the Baltic
218. Language contacts outside Scandinavia II: with Celtic languages
219. Language contacts outside Scandinavia III: with England
220. Language contacts outside Scandinavia IV: with France
221. Language contacts outside Scandinavia V: Loans from Latin and Greek
222. Language contacts outside Scandinavia VI: with Germany
223. Bilingualism in Schleswig, Finland, North Sweden, Northern Norway, on the Faroe Islands, in Iceland and in Greenland
224. Linguistic minorities in Scandinavia I: Indigenous minorities
225. Linguistic minorities in Scandinavia II: Immigrational minorities
226. History of the Scandinavian emigrant languages
227. History of foreign languages in the Scandinavian countries