

Contents

Acknowledgements — 1

Regine Eckardt and Manfred Sailer

Beyond “any” and “ever” — 3

Johan van der Auwera & Lauren Van Alsenoy

Mapping the West Germanic any’s — 21

Jack Hoeksema

Polarity items in Strawsonian contexts – A comparison — 47

Volker Gast

From æghwæðer to either:

The distribution of a negative polarity item in historical perspective — 79

Johan Brandtler

Evaluability – An Alternative Approach to Polarity Sensitivity — 103

Luka Crnić

How to get even with desires and imperatives — 127

I-Ta Chris Hsieh

On NPI Licensing in Possibility Conditionals — 155

Jon Gajewski

An analogy between a connected exceptive phrase and polarity items — 183

Elena Herburger and Simon Mauck

The chance of being an NPI — 213

Robert Levine

The modal need VP gap (non)anomaly — 241

Regine Eckardt and Eva Csipak

Minimizers – Towards pragmatic licensing — 267

Ai Matsui

Revisiting the Licensing Problem through Understating NPIs: The Case of Japanese Anmari ‘(not) very/much’ — 299

Edgar Onea and Manfred Sailer

Really all that clear? — 323

Mingya Liu, Regine Eckardt, and Janina Radó

Polarity in Context — 351

Subject index — 369