Contents

Introduction — 1

1  Playful Philosophy: The Protreptic Scenes — 9
  1.1  The First Protreptic — 10
  1.1.1  The Initial List of Goods — 11
  1.1.2  The Argument on Good Fortune — 14
  1.1.3  Using the Goods — 21
  1.1.4  Using the Goods Rightly — 23
  1.1.5  Knowledge / Wisdom — 26
  1.1.6  Appendix: Conventional Goods as Potential Evils — 26
  1.1.7  The Relation between Virtue and Knowledge — 28
  1.1.8  Providers of Wisdom — 35
  1.1.9  Evaluation of the Argument: The Relation between Wisdom and Happiness — 36
  1.1.10  Socrates the “Sophist”: Similarities between the Socratic and Eristic Method — 44
  1.1.11  Conclusion: The Aim of the First Protreptic — 47
  1.2  The Second Protreptic — 48
  1.2.1  Redefining Knowledge: Production and Use — 48
  1.2.2  Which Form of Knowledge? — 51
  1.2.3  Crito’s Intervention — 56
  1.2.4  The Art of Politics — 57
  1.2.5  A Note on Socrates’ Method — 64
  1.2.6  Conclusion — 65

2  Serious Sophistry: The Eristic Scenes — 67
  2.1  The Individual Scenes — 68
  2.1.1  The First Eristic Scene — 68
  2.1.2  The Second Eristic Scene — 72
  2.1.3  The Third Eristic Scene — 88
  2.2  The Three Eristic Scenes as a Continuum — 103
  2.2.1  Forms and Recollection in the Third Eristic Scene — 103
  2.2.2  The Continuum — 105
  2.2.3  Two Eristic Assumptions — 110
  2.2.4  Back to the Continuum — 119