Contents

Acknowledgements ............................................. IX
Abbreviations .................................................. XI

Introduction

The Twofold Task of Reconstruction .......................... 3
1. Reconstruction on the Basis of an Understanding of Kierkegaard’s Authorship as a Whole .............. 3
2. Reconstruction on the Basis of the Thematization of Nihilism in Nietzsche and Heidegger .............. 7

The Three Guiding Questions .................................. 11
1. The Question of Historicality .............................. 11
2. The Question of the Other ................................ 13
3. The Question of Becoming ................................ 14

The Method and Structure of this Study ......................... 15

Part One: The Question of Historicality

Chapter One

Constantius’ ‘Experimenting Psychology’ .................. 19

A Phenomenological Psychology of Repetition ............... 20
  1. First Stage: Repetition and Desire, Don Juan .......... 22
  2. Second Stage: Repetition and Diversion ............... 26
  3. Third Stage: Repetition and Poetic Reproduction .... 29

Proust and Constantius .......................................... 35

Constantius’ Method ........................................ 36

Chapter Two

Models of Authentic Historicality in Eighteen Edifying Discourses 39

Job: Repetition as Taking-Back ............................. 42

Paul: ‘The Thorn in the Flesh’ ............................. 47
Part Two: The Question of the Other

Chapter Three
Time as the Trace of the Other
The Parts of Time
The Glance of Ingeborg and the Moment of Vision
The Fall as the Beginning of History

Chapter Four
Reconciliation as the Fullness of Time
Climacus’ Notion of the Other
Ignorance and Consciousness of Sin
Contradiction and Contemporaneity
First Example: The Image of the Crucified One
Second Example: The Woman Who Anointed Jesus

Climacus’ Notion of the Other and Metaphysics
Hegel
Lévinas
Conclusion

Excursus: Does Climacus’ Notion of the Other Allow for a Social Theory?

Part Three: The Question of Becoming

Chapter Five
Becoming Precedes Being
Repetition as the Stranding of Metaphysics
‘The Greeks’
Modernity
The Philosophy of the Future
A Theory of Becoming?
Dialectical and Pathos-filled Transitions
The Transition from Possibility to Actuality
The Transition from Non-Being to Being
Contents

Repetition and the Quest of Ontology .......................... 128
Revelation and Ontology (Bultmann) .......................... 129
The Distinction between Law and Gospel ..................... 133

Chapter Six
Repetition and Nihilism: Kierkegaard and Nietzsche ............ 136
Comparing Kierkegaard and Nietzsche .......................... 136
Nietzsche’s Doctrine of the Eternal Return of the Same ........ 138
Heidegger’s Nietzsche ........................................... 141
The Eternal Recurrence and the Moment of Vision ............. 144
Constantius’ Repetition and Nietzsche’s Eternal Recurrence ... 153
Two Views of the Historicality of Existence .................... 154
Two Views of the Crisis of Modernity .......................... 158

Conclusion: Recollection and Repetition
Two Modes of Existing ........................................... 165
Two Paradigms of Thought ....................................... 168

Bibliography ...................................................... 171