Cognitive Linguistics

Instructions for Authors

1. Submitting an article

Manuscripts should be submitted online to http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/cogl

You will be required to enter an abstract of maximum 200 words and 3–5 keywords as part of the submission process.

Please highlight in your cover letter how your submission represents a significant advancement to the theory or methods of cognitive linguistics, or to the phenomena cognitive linguistics accounts for.

Articles must be in English. Authors may want to consider having their submission checked for readability. The journal does not offer in-house copy-editing or proof-reading services.

All submitted manuscripts must include a data availability statement outlining how the supporting data will be made available, or explain why the data (or subset of data) cannot be made available. For further information, see the journal’s Open Data Policy.

For Registered Reports, please see the separate Registered Reports guidelines.

2. Peer review

The journal operates a double-blind peer review that usually takes 3–4 months. Submissions are assessed by members of the editorial board and 2 or 3 external reviewers.

3. Formatting and style

Cognitive Linguistics does not require that authors conform to a specific style sheet when submitting manuscripts for review. However, please observe the following conventions:

- The abstract and manuscript must be anonymous. Please do not include your name or any identifying information in the text body or footnotes of the manuscript, or in the filename.
- Place figures and tables within the text and not at the end or in a separate file during the review stage.
- Footnotes are required, endnotes are not allowed.
- The References list must be included in the manuscript.
Once accepted for publication, the authors will be required to submit the final version, electronically and conforming to the journal style sheet: please see the De Gruyter Mouton journal style sheet.

4. Manuscript length

A Research Article should normally be between 8,000 and 10,000 words when first submitted. Authors should report the total word count (including tables, footnotes, and appendices, but excluding references and supplementary material) at the end of the manuscript. The final, accepted version of an article may be longer as a result of necessary revisions, but will generally not exceed 12,000 words.

5. Permissions

Copies of any letters granting permission to reproduce illustrations or tables from other sources, or lengthy quoted passages, must be included with the manuscript.

6. Proofs

Authors are asked to check their manuscripts very carefully before submitting them in order to prevent delays and extra costs at proofing.
