Patrice Salzenstein, Centre for Scientific Research, France, patrice.salzenstein@femto-st.fr

DESCRIPTION

The objective of this special issue is to report high-quality research papers as well as review articles for applied physics and the related materials along with mathematical methods. The topics of interest include many exotic and fast-developed cross-disciplinary physics, e.g., optoelectronics, spintronics, topological magnetism and multiferroics. The special issue also covers a few traditional branches of physics, which provide continuous support for our industry and technology.

The scope of this Special issue includes:

- ▶ Optics and laser
- ▶ Optoelectronics
- ▶ Noise
- ▶ Statistical and non-linear physics
- ▶ Metrology
- ▶ Spintronics
- ▶ Topological magnetism
- ▶ Hard magnetic properties
- ▶ Multiferroics
- ▶ Hysteresis loops
