

Lucius & Lucius now published by De Gruyter Oldenbourg

As of 2016, journals and books previously published by Lucius & Lucius Verlagsgesellschaft are being published by De Gruyter Oldenbourg/ De Gruyter. We are delighted to offer you these high-quality titles.

2016 journal subscriptions

The change of publisher may be noticeable by a slight change in appearance, but the academic quality will of course be maintained. The prices announced for 2016 (incl. postage costs) will retain their validity. There will be no changes to the type of invoicing and the notice periods in 2016.

Changes in July 2016

Brockhaus Commission will continue to be your point of contact for inquiries up until the end of June 2016. From July 1, 2016, De Gruyter's service partner HGV will assume responsibility for these tasks. In addition, all online contents will be available on www.degruyter.com from July. Customers with online access will be redirected to the new site.

Advantages of the online content

- Articles in HTML and PDF versions
- Citation export for every article + comment and share functions
- E-mail alerts for new issues and articles
- Comprehensive indexing in Abstracting & Indexing Services
- Usage statistics available (in COUNTER format)
- Secure archiving of all online contents using the Portico service (portico.org)

We are currently digitalizing all available archive issues of Lucius & Lucius journals. From summer 2016, these digital archives will be available on www.degruyter.com. Subscribers to the online edition will then automatically have free access to all available issues dating back to 1995. There is also the option of purchasing the archives and receiving permanent access.

Free trial of the online edition

Customers that do not yet have online access, can receive free access to the online edition of their journals(s) in 2016. Subscribers who are interested in this should send a short e-mail to lucius@brocom.de by May 31, 2016 (including the name of the relevant journal, the ISSN and their customer number).

De Gruyter's subscription model

From 2017, all journal subscriptions will be switched to the regular De Gruyter model and to the terms and conditions that apply at De Gruyter. There will be three different subscriptions available: Print Only, Online Only and Print + Online. The prices for these options will be announced in July 2016. Of course, the subscriptions of institutional customers can also be combined with other De Gruyter journals to receive a package discount.

Further information about the changeover can also be found on our website: www.degruyter.com/page/lucius. We look forward to continuing our successful working relationship!
