Call for Papers

Please could you circulate this call for papers to staff within the Law and Crime Sciences (Criminology/Psychology/Forensics/Policing) department?

This call for papers is for submissions to the upcoming issues of 'The International Commentary on Evidence' that are due to publish in 2016.

This journal is peer reviewed and appears annually, and may be of interest to academic staff or postgraduates who are teaching/researching within the field of evidence law. The journal appears alongside all reputable Legal Journals online ensuring greater exposure for authors and the publication itself.

About ICE

International Commentary on Evidence (or "ICE") is an impactful peer-reviewed journal on evidence law and theory. Its purpose is to promote scholarly communication about the law of evidence without regard to political or academic boundaries.

The word "International" describes the subject matter published within the journal. We publish works concerning evidentiary issues of interest in more than one jurisdiction. Contributions need not, however, refer to the law of more than one jurisdiction. To illustrate the point, a paper on the definition of hearsay, or a law reform proposal, would be of interest in a number of jurisdictions, even if it referred exclusively to the law of one jurisdiction. And a comparative analysis of scientific evidence would certainly be of interest in more than one jurisdiction. On the other hand, a paper on whether a court in a particular jurisdiction correctly construed a prior opinion would not be appropriate for the journal if it only related to the law in that jurisdiction.

This journal is essential reading for academics, legal professionals, criminologists, forensics experts, students and those working in the areas of evidence law. We encourage academics and students to submit book reviews that may be of interest to professionals within this discipline.
All submission is via Scholar One (online). We aim to have an answer for you within 2 – 4 weeks. For submissions, manuscript guidelines and further information please see: http://www.degruyter.com/view/j/ice
