Although we publish in English, IPH welcomes submissions in all other languages. In such cases the editors will send your submission out for preliminary assessment and if the report is favorable we will then send it out for peer review. To assist us in this process we request that all submissions in languages other than English be accompanied by an abstract (c. 300 words) in English. If a decision is made to publish your work, we will then ask you to provide an English translation [not via Google Translate or a similar service] for publication in the journal. At the moment, IPH does not have funding for translations. You will have the option to also upload the original language version onto our website.
