CONTENTS

Preface ix
Acknowledgments xii

PART ONE.
The Gospel of Prosperity
1. "Our Poor Distressed Country" 3
2. The Necessities of State Aid 32
3. An Imaginative Reinterpretation of the Law 47

PART TWO.
A Covenant of Public Works:
Legislating for the Railroads
4. "Railroad Fevers" and the Party Line at the Capitols 63
5. The Enemy Within: Parochialism Run Amok 85
6. Winning Friends and Influencing Legislation 98

PART THREE.
"The Glory is Departed from Israel":
Using the Railroads
7. "Let the Representatives . . . Have a Hand in It" 121
8. Testing the Gospel of Prosperity, 1870–1871 133
9. "They Must Stand Aside . . .": The Republican Mission in Peril 146

PART FOUR.
Balm in Gilead? Financing Railroads
10. Friends in Need on Capitol Hill 163
11. Friends in Deed on Wall Street? The Enemy Without 175
12. Railroad Ties and Bonds: Construction, Credit, and the "Consumptive Purse" 185
Contents

PART FIVE.
THERE IS NO SALVATION:
THE FALL OF THE RAILROADS

13. The Alabama & Chattanooga Catastrophe 213
14. "They Have Thus Prostituted . . ."; Republicanism Riven 237
15. "A War Now Begins between These Roads and the People," 1873 250

Coda. "And Was Jerusalem Builded Here?" 299
Appendix. Could the Democrats Have Done Better? 303
Abbreviations 307
Notes 308
Bibliography 339
Index 353