Contents

Introduction: The Beast That Ate Campus
1
1. The World before (and Shortly after) Wharton:
   Getting a Business Education in the Nineteenth Century
   14
2. Teach the Children . . . What? Business Schools and Their Curricular Confusions
   53
3. Dismal Science versus Applied Economics:
   The Unhappy Relationship between Business Schools and Economics Departments
   91
4. It’s a White Man’s World: Women and
   African Americans in Business Schools
   119
5. Good in a Crisis? How Business Schools
   Responded to Economic Downturns—or Didn’t 155
Contents

6. Same as It Ever Was: How Business Schools Helped Create the New Gilded Age 195

Acknowledgments 225

Notes 227

Bibliography 251

Index 269
Nothing Succeeds Like Failure