Contents

Preface ........................................................................................................... ix

I 1837 Return to Concord ........................................................................... 3
  1. Fall 1837: Commencement.  2. Harvard under Quincy.

II 1838–1840 The Ethical Imperatives of Transcendentalism .. . . . . . . 45

III 1841–1843 American Reformation ...................................................... 91
  26. Fall 1841.  27. Tragedy.  28. Excursions.

IV 1843–1845 The Road to Walden Pond .................................................. 129
  33. The Railroad Comes to Concord.  34. Inside the Civilized Man.
  35. Spring and Summer 1844.  36. Fall 1844.  37. Spring 1845.
  40. The New Typology of the Leaf.

V 1846–1849 The Profession of Letters ..................................................... 161
  41. Winter 1846: Carlyle.  42. The New Adam (Smith).
  43. Spring 1846: Walden.  44. The Great Awakening.
  45. Summer 1846: Resistance to Civil Government.
  46. North Twin Lake and “Ktaadn.”  47. Second Year at Walden.

VI 1849–1851 The Language of the Leopard: Wildness and Society ............. 199
  52. Shipwreck and Salvation on Cape Cod.
  53. Fall 1849, Spring 1850: Hindu Idealism.
  56. August and September 1850: The Material of a Million Concods.
  57. Fall 1850: Trip to Canada.
  58. The Red Face of Man I.  59. The Red Face of Man II.
60. November 1850 to April 1851: Gramatica Parda.

VII 1851–1852 New Books, New Worlds ................................. 235
63. Spring 1851: The Naming of Apples. 64. June 1851:
The Four Worlds of Henry Thoreau. 65. Thoreau, Darwin, and The Voyage of the Beagle. 66. Summer 1851:
Practical Transcendentalism. 67. Fall 1851: This is my Home, my Native Soil. 68. December 1851 to February 1852: The Short Days of Winter. 69. Lapidae Crescent. 70. A Sufficient List of Failures. 71. April 1852: William Gilpin and the articulation of landscape. 72. The Articulation of Landscape. 73. The Flowering of Man. 74. My Year of Observation. 75. August and September 1852: Country Life.

VIII 1852–1854 Walden, or the Triumph of the Organic .......... 277

IX 1854–1862 The Economy of Nature .................................. 321

Chronology ................................................................. 391
Principal Sources .......................................................... 393
Notes ................................................................. 397
Index ................................................................. 441