Contents

Acknowledgments xi

Introduction 3

1. The Great Discovery 7
   1.1. Grant’s Roots and Formative Years 7
   1.2. War and ‘Conversion’ 13
   1.3. Post-war Writings 19
   1.4. Grant’s Study of Theology and Philosophy 22

   2.1. The Origins and Meaning of the ‘Theology of the Cross’ 33
   2.2. The Significance of the Theology of the Cross for Grant 48

3. Philosophy in the Mass Age 55
   3.1. The Mass Society: What It Is and How It Came to Be 55
   3.2. The Consequences of the Mass Society on Human Life: Simone Weil and Existentialism 61
      3.2.1. Simone Weil’s Analysis of Force and Affliction 61
      3.2.2. Jean-Paul Sartre and Existentialism: The Tragic Vision of Life 67
   3.3. Western Liberalism and the Mass Society: The Theology of Glory in North America 70
3.3.1. Education, Religion, and Mental Health in the Mass Society 71
3.3.2. Modern Liberalism – Hegel, Liberal Humanism, Marxism 81
3.4. The Struggle toward a Theology of the Cross for the Mass Age: Weil versus Hegel 84
3.4.1. The Purpose of Philosophy in the Mass Society 85
3.4.2. Weil’s Vision of the Good 88
3.4.3. Grant’s Earliest Encounters with Weil and the Insights Arising Therefrom 100
3.4.4. Loving the World Concretely 106
3.4.5. The Growing Influence of Weil and the Allure of Hegel 108

4. Intimations of Deprivation 121
4.1. A Deepening of Perspective 122
4.2. The Darkness of the Technological Society: Its Nature and Essence 124
4.2.1. Jacques Ellul: The Technological Society ‘As It Is’ 124
4.2.2. Leo Strauss: The Irreconcilability of Ancient and Modern Visions of Society 126
4.2.3. Philip Sherrard: The Corruption within Western Civilization As a Whole 134
4.3. The Theology of the Technological Society: The Consequences of Liberalism in Education, Religion, and Politics 137
4.3.1. Education and Religion 138
4.3.2. Politics 150
4.4. Charity and Contemplation Inspired by the Cross 168
4.4.1. The Eastern Tradition of Christianity 168
4.4.2. Intimations of Deprival 171

5. Faith and Justice in the Technological Era 181
5.1. Understanding the Technological Era ‘As It Is’: Nietzsche, Heidegger, and Céline 181
5.1.1. Early Encounters with Nietzsche 182
5.1.2. Nietzsche and Heidegger 192
5.1.3. Céline 196
5.2. Bringing to Light the Darkness as Darkness: The Fate of Liberalism in the Technological Era 198

5.2.1. The Essence of Technology 199
5.2.2. Liberal Justice in the Technological Era 203
5.2.3. Test Case: Abortion and Euthanasia 209
5.2.4. Continuing Evidence: Politics and Education 214

5.3. The Light That Continues to Shine in the Darkness: Faith, Love, and Justice in an Afflicted World 218

5.3.1. Reason and Revelation: Plato and the Gospels 219
5.3.2. Being and Acting in the World: The Theology of the Cross, Weil, and Western Christianity 226
5.3.3. 'Faith and the Multiversity': The Culmination of the Search for Clarity of Vision 234

Conclusion 243

Notes 253

Index 275