DEFORESTING THE EARTH
Michael Williams is emeritus professor of geography at the University of Oxford and a Fellow of Oriel College. He is the author, most recently, of Americans and Their Forests: A Historical Geography as well as the editor of Wetlands: A Threatened Landscape and coeditor of A Century of British Geography.
For Loré,
once again