CONTENTS

Acknowledgments ix

Introduction: Is There an Islamic Context for The Thousand and One Nights? 1

1. THE ISLAMIC FACTOR IN GLOBAL TIMES   21
   The Islamic and the Foreign 25
   Perspectives 26
   The Early Vogue as a Global Index 29
   The Frame Tale as Navigational Trope 30
   Framing a Collection or Framing Cultures? 31
   Warnings Grounded in Islamic Law 33
   Multiple Approaches to the Frame Tale 35
   The Moral Implication in the Frame Story 35
   Resignation or Submission to Fate? 38
   Narrating Cultural Consciousness 40
   The Frame Story in Historical Contexts 42
   The Frame Story as Urban Growth 48

2. THE UNIFYING ISLAMIC FACTOR  52
   Narrative Challenge and Attraction 55
   Upholding Human Propensity to Security 56
   The Ordering of Good and the Forbidding of Evil 59
   From Transmission to Narration 61
   The Natural and the Supernatural Companionship 62
vi CONTENTS

The Supernatural as Moral Authority 63
The Islamic Narrative Function 67
Loose Thematic Patterns 72
The Particular and the Universal in Religion 73
In Celebration of God 76
Binding Commitments and Pledges 78
Islamic or Not? The Nature of the Discriminatory Instance 82
The Islamic Law and the State 84
Law and Terms of Beauty 85
The Paradisiacal Referent 86
The Sanctified Sphere 88
Apostasy and the End of Narrative 90
Love or Sex? 92
Vicissitudes of Fortune and Human Frailties 100

3. THE AGE OF MUSLIM EMPIRE AND THE BURGEONING OF A TEXT 106
Representational or Parodic 107
Education and the Paradigm of Rise and Fall 111
Knowledge and the Growth of Empire 117
Education and Vicissitudes of Fate 119
Grounding in Magic 121
Education: Artists and Cultivated Taste 124
Refinement, Profession, and Class 127
Marketability and Freedom as Topography 128
Urbanity and Love 130
Tropes for Imperial Growth: Race and Acquisition of Slaves 132
Islamic Law and the Needs of the Empire 134
Expediency, and the Center That Does Not Hold 136
Narrative as Historiography 137
Vagaries of Politics 138
Wealth and Luxury as Signs of Deterioration 140

The Imperial and the Islamic 146
Sites of Popular Faith: Book Markets 150
Competing Centers or Competing Dynasties? 152
Metropolitan Temptations 155
Travels to the Metropolis 157
Professions and Crafts 159
CONTENTS

Narrating the Journey of Consciousness 160
   From Regression to Progression 162
   The Liberating In-betweenness 164
Wine and Islamic Prohibitions 168
   Social Interdependency 172
   Idolatry and Monotheism 176
   The Urban and the Imperial 178
Cairene Narratives and the Displacement of the Sacred 179
Ethics and Morals 180
   Narrating Desire as Sexual Intrigues 183
Institutionalized Religion and Issues of Sects 184
   Christians and Jews in an Islamic Environment 185
Heathen and Islamic Narrative 189

5. NONRELIGIOUS DISPLACEMENTS IN POPULAR TRADITION 197
   The Unwritten Tale 209
   As Medieval Narrative 213
Dichotomous Patterning in the Classical Tradition 214
   Signs and Sites of Transgression 216
   Appropriation for the Urban Classes 222
   Urban Narrative Sites 226

6. THE PUBLIC ROLE IN ISLAMIC NARRATIVE THEORIZATIONS 228

7. SCHEHERAZADE’S NONVERBAL NARRATIVES IN RELIGIOUS CONTEXTS 250
   What Is Nonverbal Narrative? 251
   Scriptoria and the Blank Page 252
   Iconic Inscription or Calligraphy 257
   Talismans, Magical Practices, and Amulets 258
   The Nonverbal in Human Action 261
   Women’s Counterhegemonic Discourse 267
   Mental Images and Pictorial Resolutions 268
   Food Semiotics 273
   The Zero Meal 276

CONCLUSIONS 279

Notes 281
Bibliography 307
Index 319