Contents

List of Illustrations  ix
Acknowledgments  xi

Introduction  1

PART I
Before 1977  19

1 Optical Animation: Special Effects Compositing Up to 1977  21

PART II
Circa 1977: Star Wars and Close Encounters of the Third Kind  103

3 The Expanded Blockbuster: The Auteurist Aesthetics of 1970s Special Effects–Driven Filmmaking  105
4  “The Buck Stops at Opticals”: Special Effects Technology on Star Wars and Close Encounters of the Third Kind  129

5  A More Plastic Reality: The Design and Conception of Star Wars and West Coast Experimental Filmmaking  146

6  “More Philosophical Grey Matter”: The Production and Aesthetic of Close Encounters of the Third Kind  179

PART III
The 1980s and Beyond  201

7  Optical Special Effects into the 1980s: A Well-Oiled Machine  203

8  “Not-too-Realistic” and Intensified Realistic Approaches in the 1980s: Traditional Stop Motion and Showscan  239

Conclusion: World-Building and the Legacy of 1970s Special Effects in Contemporary Cinema  263

Notes  275
Bibliography  329
Index  345