ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

A version of chapter 2 appeared in History & Memory, and a version of chapter 4 in Critical Inquiry. The other chapters are published here for the first time.

For their reading and response to Chapter 4, I would like to thank members of a workshop on psychoanalysis at Cornell (especially David Bathrick, Brett de Bary, Nelly Furman, Mary Jacobus, Biddy Martin, Tim Murray, David Rodowick, Suzanne Stewart, and Nancy Wood) as well as the participants at the 1996 session of the School of Criticism and Theory. I thank Michael Roth for his reading of the entire manuscript and for his insightful comments. I would particularly like to thank Geoffrey Hartman both for his reading of the manuscript and for his carefully reasoned and eloquent response to Chapter 4 when it was presented at a typically engaging and argumentative colloquium of the School of Criticism and Theory.

For their reactions to a number of the essays in this book, I thank Ben Brower, Leigh Ann Eubanks, Adam Hoffman, Tracie Matysik, Kathleen Merrow, Richard Schaefer, Judith Surkis, and Jeremy Varon. I also thank Kathleen Merrow for her assistance in gathering materials for Chapter 5, and Tracie Matysik for her assistance in preparing the index. For her reading of the manuscript and her many helpful comments, I am (as always) grateful to Jane Pedersen. Finally, I thank Grey Osterud for carefully reading and copyediting the manuscript.

D. LAČ.
HISTORY AND MEMORY
AFTER AUSCHWITZ